
Research

Scientific research is an integral part of studies in doctoral programmes. Therefore, the PhD website focuses on relevant information on scientific research.

The most useful part of the Science tab are the links to updated pages on scientific awards, conferences and announced grants, and the overviews of science-related topics. These include a list of already supported scientific projects or a list of peer-reviewed and impacted journals. The bookmark texts include links to useful applications, such as the OBD (personal bibliographic database), in which each doctoral candidate, as the author of scientific published texts, fills in bibliographic data about his or her contribution.
